With the arrival of spring, I have a confession to make.

I, and I alone, am entirely responsible for the complete lack of snow here in Blueridge this past winter.

That's right. You can blame (or thank) me.

At the very end of 2025, just a couple of days before the New Year arrived, I purchased a snow thrower. I'd injured my shoulder and didn't want to be shovelling the driveway in my injured state, so I bought a fancy new machine to be ready for the snow when it arrived. That, of course, was the cue for Mother Nature to decide we wouldn't get any snow this season, and the new machine remains entirely uncontaminated by frozen water in any form. It will have to wait for next winter.

If you're bothered by the absence of snow, I deeply apologize. Alternately, if you're happy we had none, I am delighted. I am nothing if not flexible about this. But either way, now you know the cause. If you like, you are welcome to bend my ear about this at the next Blueridge Cozy Night.

In any case, spring is here and we at the BCA wish you all the best! Enjoy the warmer weather!

Oh, and thank you once again to those in the neighbourhood whose holiday lights still shine in the evenings! You know who you are, and the editor appreciates you!

Housing Policy, Local Control, and the Politics of Urgency in B.C.

The Office of Susie Chant, MLA for North Vancouver – Seymour

The discussion about small-scale multi-unit housing (SSMUH) and Bill 25 is now a regular part of conversations about housing in British Columbia.

The main issue is a familiar one. Municipal leaders say that land-use planning has always been their job, and some think the province is now too controlling. Bill 25, for example, requires local governments to update zoning bylaws by mid-2026 so that more homes can be built in areas that used to be low-density. The goal is to make housing policy more consistent across the province.

Critics say this adds to the feeling that the province is taking a 'top-down' approach that may not fit each community's needs. The province, however, is focused on the ongoing housing crisis. Housing remains a top priority in Budget 2026, with the government stressing the need for more supply and better affordability. Housing investments are now almost five times higher than in 2016, and since 2017, more than 95,000 homes have been built or are in progress.

Recent policy changes indicate a shift in pace. The province is moving about $1.4 billion within its housing plan, delaying some projects but keeping the same overall targets for new homes. Much of this money is now going to existing programs, including support for non-profit housing, assisted living, and below-market housing.

By building new homes and supporting current systems, the province is showing its overall strategy. Policies for renters, such as rent caps tied to inflation and measures to curb speculation, are meant to help in the short term while more homes are built. There are also early signs that the market is responding, with rents dropping in some areas compared to last year.

The province sees policies like SSMUH and Bill 25 not as a way to overrule municipalities, but as a way to make sure every community has basic housing opportunities. Since housing shortages affect many areas, a more standard approach is needed to prevent uneven progress.

Municipal governments do more than just carry out plans; they are important partners in building housing. Right now, the debate shows that fixing the housing crisis in British Columbia is not just about making good policies. It also depends on coordination, trust, and how willing different levels of government are to work together quickly when needed.

Why I Support Balanced Budgets

Jim Hanson, Councillor, District of North Vancouver

At a regular Council meeting on March 16th, 2026, our Council approved a budget that will bring in a 3.5% tax increase, with 2% allocated to operating expenditures and 1.5% for infrastructure renewal. To prevent a larger tax increase, the District was forced to reduce operating costs by $5,000,000 across a variety of departments. The choices are difficult, but we remain committed to the goal of careful fiscal discipline. As a local government, we are prohibited by Provincial legislation from borrowing to fund operating expenses.

Not so for the Provincial government, which recently tabled a budget that relies heavily on borrowing to fund operations. The 2026 budget forecasts a $13.3 billion deficit (the largest in Provincial history), with debt to rise to $178.5 billion in 2026, and then to keep rising to $230 billion by 2028-2029. The cost of servicing this debt, meanwhile, is expected to rise from 4.7% of revenue in 2025-26 to 7.9% in 2028-29. In dollar terms, this will mean the Provincial taxpayer will bear an estimated $5.1 billion in annual interest payments in 2025-26, rising to $8.7 billion by 2028-29, much of this money flowing out of the Province to foreign bond holders. These facts have caused Moody's to once again downgrade the Province's credit rating, which will further increase the cost of borrowing.

In defence of the budget, we have heard statements that these deficits will protect health care, which has been declining in quality and availability in recent years. But do sustained budget deficits actually serve the purpose of benefiting health care delivery in the Province?

The "father of Medicare" and founder of the New Democratic Party, Tommy Douglas, was elected Premier of Saskatchewan in 1944, inheriting the second highest per capita debt level of any Province at the time, at 38% of GDP. By 1953, this debt had been fully retired, and the Douglas government ran budget surpluses continually throughout their 17 years in office. Premier Douglas believed it was better to spend on public services than bond interest, and pursued a long-term fiscal strategy to maximize the money that could be available for achieving public good.

In British Columbia, over the next four years alone, we will spend something in the order of $25 billion in interest payments to bond holders. Had we pursued better fiscal policies, during this same time we could instead be building dozens of hospitals, dozens of schools, multiple rapid-transit projects, and addressing so many other social needs. This is why I support balanced budgets.

Chemtrade Rezoning and Chlorine Production

Jeff Powell

If you live in Blueridge, Seymour Heights, or Maplewood, it is likely you have heard about the Chemtrade plant and their request for a rezoning. You probably know they manufacture chlorine gas, along with other products, at their facility at 100 Amherst Avenue. There was a public hearing on the topic on February 24th and 25th at DNV Municipal Hall. This article attempts to summarize the situation briefly so everyone is aware of the details before the DNV Council considers the issue again at their April 13th meeting.

What Chemtrade Does

Their facility makes chlorine gas from salt and ships it via railcar to destinations in both Canada and the USA. Chemtrade says their product is used to purify water in many systems in Western Canada and the Western United States. Chemtrade's plant employs about 120 people here in North Vancouver.

The Rezoning and Lease Issues

Chemtrade currently manufactures their chlorine on land leased from the Vancouver Port Authority. That lease expires in 2030, and the Port Authority is making a push to remove all manufacturing (of any kind, by any company) from all of their land. They want their land used for shipping-related work, not manufacturing. In response, Chemtrade proposes to move chlorine production to land they own, which is adjacent to the leased land. In the process, they will build additional safety mechanisms into their plant to further reduce the risk of an accidental chlorine release. However, this move requires a zoning change from the DNV since the current zoning doesn't allow the production of hazardous substances. It is that rezoning that the DNV Council is currently considering and that will come up for another vote at the April 13 meeting. Chemtrade states that if the rezoning is denied, they cannot continue to produce chlorine at the plant after the 2030 lease expiration.

The Controversy

Chlorine gas is highly toxic and corrosive. An industrial accident or a train derailment could result in serious injuries (or worse), and the number of people affected might be large depending on the specifics of the incident. Opponents and competitors of Chemtrade claim there are significant risks, both at the plant itself and particularly during the transport of the chlorine by rail. Chemtrade says their plant has operated without an accident for a long time, uses the latest and safest technologies, and that there is little risk of anything going wrong. They also claim that chlorine is shipped in specifically reinforced railcars that have never leaked in the past, even during derailment incidents. These starkly opposing views came out at the public meeting in February.

What Happens Next

The DNV Council will vote on at least the second reading of the Chemtrade rezoning request at their meeting on April 13, 2026. DNV staff recommend the rezoning be approved. The decision is a complex one, and how Council votes will have significant implications regardless of their decision. Rezoning to keep the plant operating leaves some level of risk in place during both production and transportation of the product. Exactly how much risk was hotly contested during the public hearing. Denying the rezoning request has implications for many cities that would have to change how they purify their water, and there are additional issues relating to international commerce with the USA.

If you'd like to learn more about this issue, the BCA maintains a page of information about the issue on their website. It contains a summary and links to various news sources that may be of interest.

Note that because the public hearing is closed, Council is now legally prohibited from getting new information from the public about this issue. However, members of the public may contact DNV staff and raise issues or ask questions. At least theoretically, if something significant should come to light, staff could work with Council to roll the process back and reopen the public hearing.

Introducing "Neighbors Helping Neighbors"
A New Way to Connect in Blueridge

Mahnaz Fardghassemi

In a world that often feels fast-paced and digital, there is something timeless about the simple act of a neighbour helping a neighbour. Whether it's lending a hand with a heavy lifting task, offering a ride to a medical appointment, or simply sharing a walk around the block, these small moments are what make Blueridge such a special place to live.

The BCA is proud to announce the launch of Neighbours Helping Neighbours, a grassroots volunteer initiative designed to support our residents when life throws an unexpected curveball.

What is Neighbours Helping Neighbours?

This program is built on the spirit of community kindness. It is a volunteer-led network intended to provide short-term, one-off support for residents facing unforeseen circumstances.

We know that sometimes a small hurdle—like recovering from a minor injury or being temporarily housebound—can make daily tasks feel daunting. Our goal is to step in and bridge that gap.

What Kind of Help is Available?

Our volunteers are your fellow Blueridge residents. They aren't professional contractors or healthcare providers—they are neighbours. You can reach out to the program for occasional tasks such as:

- Around the House: Help getting garbage and recycling cans to the curb.
- Getting Around: A one-time lift to a local medical appointment or the pharmacy.
- Staying Active: Someone to accompany you for a friendly neighbourhood walk.
- Essential Errands: One-off help with light groceries or picking up a prescription.

Keeping it "Neighbourly"

To ensure this program remains sustainable and accessible to everyone, we focus on one-off assistance rather than ongoing or professional services. Think of it as the kind of favour you'd ask a good friend for—a helping hand in a "pinch," not a permanent service provider. Please note that the BCA's insurance says we can't let volunteers enter people's homes as part of this program, so we have to work within that limitation.

How to Get Involved

Whether you need a hand or are ready to lend one, getting started is easy:

- If You Need Support: Simply fill out our request form on the BCA website or email us at nhn@blueridgeca.org. Our team of coordinators will review your request and get back to you within 24 hours to see how we can help.
- If You'd Like to Volunteer: We are always looking for friendly faces! Our volunteer list is low-pressure; we'll notify you when a neighbour has a need, and you only jump in if your schedule allows. To get added to the list, please fill out our NHN Volunteer Form.

Blueridge has always been a community that looks out for one another. With Neighbours Helping Neighbours, we're just making it a little more official.

The sun was warm but the wind was chill.
You know how it is with an April day.
When the sun is out and the wind is still,
You're one month on in the middle of May.

Help Reduce Bird Strikes

Elmira Nazar

Have you been sitting in your home, heard something smack into your window, and looked down to see a bird that collided with the glass? Have you put up stickers to prevent this from happening again, but it didn't really help? The number of birds that collide with windows and glass is unbelievably high. We're talking in the millions annually according to the BC SPCA website for just Canada. So what can we do to prevent bird collisions and help the bird population?

According to the OWL Rehab website, these are some things you can do to prevent the collisions:

- Close blinds partially. Vertical blinds are the best for deterring birds.
- Draw designs with erasable chalk pens or tempera paint.
- If you have a bird feeder, hang it closer than 3 feet to your window, or more than 30 feet away, and hang it at eye level or slightly higher.
- Choose frosted, etched, or glass blocks for the windows and glass in your house instead of clear ones whenever possible.
- Putting up window decals. There are specific bird-friendly decals available.
- Putting up markers. If you decide to try out this method, make sure of the following:
 1. Make sure the markers are on the outside of the glass – this would mean you'd install it from outside of your home, NOT inside.
 2. Make sure there is high contrast with reflections.
 3. Make sure to space the markers 2x2 inches (5 cm) apart across the entire glass surface. There is a Canadian company called Feather Friendly that sells window markers that are already spaced out appropriately for an easy solution.

Note that there are two types of hazards for birds in terms of window/glass collisions. There is transparent or fly-through glass, where the bird cannot see the glass. This is often in a walkway or railing. The other hazard is reflectivity, which is most likely the case in the windows of our homes, where the bird sees the reflection of nature in the window.

Other resources:

- The Fatal Light Awareness Program (FLAP) app - A BirdSafe Do-it-Yourself Building Risk Assessment app designed to estimate the collision risks for a building that birds may be exposed to
- Government of Canada Frequently asked questions on Bird collisions with glass windows

Please consider improving the glass and window visibility of your home to help with the bird population.

A Welcome Bit of Advice About Bedtime

Fariba Leilaby

Hello neighbours! I've been part of this community since 2007. I feel lucky to call this place my home. Lately, I've noticed many young parents moving to and settling in our community, and I'd love to share some practical parenting tips. I don't claim to be an expert, but over more than two decades I've learned a lot of things that may help make life a little easier for younger parents.

Bedtime Tip:

Getting kids to bed can be a challenge, but having a consistent routine really helps. My kids are adults now, but years ago, our family had a Farsi phrase for bedtime: "Mesmak, joujou, lala." Translated into English, "Mesmak" means toothbrush, "Joujou" is the cartoon character Tweety Bird featured on the tube of popular toothpaste by the same name, and "lala" in Farsi means "sleeping."

As soon as I said these three words, my kids were ready to go to bed. They were actually excited! If I wasn't home for bedtime and my husband was supposed to put them to bed, they were very sad because he simply didn't have the same fun routine as me.

For children under eight years old, I recommend aiming for a 7:30 pm bedtime. Here is a 30-minute routine that can make bedtime smoother and even enjoyable:

Help them brush, then move to story time. Let your child pick a book (or you choose one if they're very young). Spend about 15 minutes reading to them from lying next to them in their bed or beside their bed. The final step is the most important one: Tuck them in and give them a kiss goodnight. It's a good way to end their day with warmth and reassurance.

If you approach bedtime as a fun, shared moment instead of as a chore, your child will settle in more easily—and be fast asleep before 8:00 pm.

Stay tuned for more tips in our spring issue of the Blueridge Bulletin!

Applications Open for the BCA's Scholarship

Lesley Brooks and Anni Danielson

The BCA is proud to continue its tradition of supporting our local youth by awarding an annual scholarship of $750 to a graduating student residing in Blueridge. We are also thrilled to announce that, starting this year, the total award has increased to $1,000. This boost is made possible by a generous annual $250 contribution from one of our Blueridge neighbours, whose kindness allows us to provide even greater support for our students as they pursue their post-secondary goals.

Applications for the Eric Andersen Blueridge Community Association Scholarship are now being accepted. Students who will be graduating from a North Vancouver high school and are planning to pursue a post-secondary education are welcome to apply. Applying students must have been involved with volunteer community work on the North Shore, and preference may be given to those who have volunteered in Blueridge/Seymour Heights neighbourhood. The BCA has previously recognized exemplary volunteers. Some past volunteer activities have included: assisting the BCA with the construction of wooden planting boxes for the community garden; cleaning up local creeks; and assisting younger students with athletic pursuits. Are you one of these outstanding, community-minded students? Aspiring candidates should speak with a school counsellor, who will provide information about how to apply. The deadline for submitting applications is April 30, 2026.

More details about the scholarship and the application form can be found on the BCA website at: <https://blueridgeca.org/scholarship/>.

BPAC Update - April 2026

Nichole Parfitt

We hope that all Blueridge families enjoyed a restful and relaxing Spring Break!!

April has kicked off with the start of some exciting new afterschool programs for students, the return of one of the most exciting weeks for students and families - the Scholastic Book Fair and the start of the Track and Field season. Keep an eye out for students running, throwing and jumping their way to district qualifications.

Neufeld's Frozen Food Fundraiser Orders

A favourite fundraiser is back - Neufeld Farm Market! With the weather getting warmer and our days getting longer, now is the time to stock up on top-quality frozen foods that are delicious, easy to BBQ and great for entertaining.

Orders are open until April 15, with pickup at the school on April 23 at 2:30 pm. You can place your order and find more information here:

The Great Box Rebuild – Volunteers Needed

Emilie Currie

Spring is here, and the Blueridge Sharing Garden is getting ready for the Great Box Rebuild, an important project to prepare the garden for the 2026 growing season.

The rebuild will take place over two days in April at the Blueridge Sharing Garden:

Demolition Day – Saturday, April 11 at 9AM

Volunteers will help dismantle old garden boxes that have reached the end of their lifespan and prepare the area for new construction.

Rebuild Day – Saturday, April 19 at 9AM

On this day we'll work together to build the new garden boxes that will support this season's planting.

Community volunteers are welcome to help on either or both days. If you're interested in participating, please email garden@blueridgeca.org so we can include you in the planning process and coordinate tools and equipment needed for a successful couple of days.

Thank you!

Once again, we'd like to thank the District of North Vancouver for supporting this project through their Sustainability Grants Program, which provides funds to support small-scale, community-based environment and sustainability projects.

And a special thank you to United Strangers for their continued and ongoing support of the garden, including their generous supply of coffee for volunteers during these work days and throughout the 2026 gardening season. Thank you for keeping us caffeinated!!

Seed Starting for Spring

Once those boxes are rebuilt, many of us gardeners will turn our attention to the growing season ahead.

April is a great time to start seeds indoors for many vegetables and herbs. Crops like tomatoes, peppers, and herbs benefit from an early start so they're strong and ready to plant once outdoor temperatures warm up.

Use seed trays or small containers with seed-starting soil, keep the soil lightly moist, and place seedlings in a bright window or under grow lights. Once seedlings are strong and the weather improves, they can be gradually introduced outdoors before planting in the garden.

Be sure to check the backs of seed packets for specific instructions!

This is also a great resource for specific growing conditions based on zones:
<https://www.westcoastseeds.com/blogs/regional-planting-charts>

Starting seeds now is a great way to get a head start on a productive growing season.

We're looking forward to seeing you back in the garden this season!

Would You Like to Help Create the Blueridge Bulletin?

Jeff Powell

As you might have noticed, the Blueridge Bulletin has become a labour of love. A lot of time and effort goes into each issue, and while I am happy to do it, I could use some help.

I regularly ask for articles and photos, and that is great, but I could use some help in my role as the editor as well.

For starters, I'd love to have someone very detail-oriented take over the collection and organization of the monthly calendar. It takes 2 - 4 hours per month to organize the monthly calendar article. It also interacts with the Events Calendar on the BCA's website and (usually) one or more articles in each month's issue. If you have some time for a particular task that needs attention to detail, please email bulletin@blueridgeca.org and let me know. The right candidate may grow into additional editing duties on the Bulletin if desired.

For starters, all you need are the following:

- a computer & web browser
- a few free hours each month
- a seriously keen attention to detail
- an understanding of Google Docs
- the ability and willingness to meet the monthly deadline

Other attributes that could be useful:

- Familiarity with MailChimp and/or WordPress will make things easier if you want to grow in the role

- A quirky sense of humour is definitely an asset

Please note: this is all volunteer work. Everything the BCA does is run by volunteers, and this is no exception.

Again, if you are interested in helping make the Blueridge Bulletin interesting and useful, please email bulletin@blueridgeca.org and let's talk!

April comes like an idiot, babbling and strewing flowers.

Submit Articles for the May Blueridge Community News

Edmund Hayley

The deadline for submitting articles for the Blueridge Community News May issue is April 28, 2026.

Articles pertaining to the neighbourhoods of Blueridge and Seymour Heights will be given precedence for publishing. All submitted articles should relate to the District of North Vancouver.

There is no minimum length requirement for articles, which can be as short as 2-3 paragraphs or as long as 500-650 words.

Some writing topics for articles include: community events, activities and fundraisers; scholarship and award recipients; educational matters regarding Blueridge Elementary, Seymour Heights Elementary and Windsor Secondary; housing development and construction issues; DNV council meetings; waste collection pick-up day; outdoor activities; and wildlife-human interaction.

Please send articles to: newsletter@blueridge.org.

Editor's Note: Which "Newsletter" Is Which?

Given the two articles above, this is a good opportunity to remind everyone that the BCA has two different publications that can be called "newsletters."

- One is the Blueridge Community News - a printed newsletter that comes out three times a year and is distributed by volunteers to all mailboxes in Blueridge and Seymour Heights.
- The other is the email you're reading right now, the Blueridge Bulletin. It comes out on the first of each month and is emailed directly to subscribers.

Both publications accept submissions from the community, both are archived on the BCA's website (see the links above), and both work to bring useful information to the residents of the Blueridge and Seymour Heights. Happy reading!

Notes from the Sausage Factory

Jeff Powell

These are highlights from DNV council meetings, intended to help Blueridge residents keep up with local government happenings that may impact our neighbourhood. Not every item before the council is mentioned, particularly if it's not relevant to Blueridge and Seymour Heights.

Mar 2, 2026 Meeting:

This meeting covered a lot of material. Public input featured a number of speakers concerned about the announced closing of the Hastings Creek Trail. In response, Mayor Little and new Chief Administrator Mike Fox both said they heard from the public on this issue and that the DNV is looking into whatever they can to keep the trail open. However, there is a $5M price on just some of the remediations needed, and that doesn't include replacing the bridge. Expect to hear more about this in the future, particularly as any large expenses will be a challenge given the budgeting environment. Next there was a delegation from the Intellectual Disabilities Society of North and West Vancouver, discussing the work they do and inviting Councillors to visit and learn more.

Next came opening remarks on the budget. It sounds like most of Council will vote for the budget mostly as proposed, with a 3.5% tax increase. However, there were differences on where and how to focus some priorities. It seems everyone realizes that money is tight, but there will be differences in how best to meet the expectations of the public while maintaining fiscal responsibility. There will probably be clashes between Councillors during debate over the budget. This was followed by public input on the Draft Financial Plan. Only one member of the public signed up to speak, and he praised Council for showing fiscal restraint this year.

Small-Scale Multi-Unit Housing (SSMUH) was next on the agenda. Specifically two items relating to a stretch of Marine Drive where the future Bus Rapid Transit project could cause changes in zoning. Council supported staff's request to apply for an extension from the SSMUH zoning requirements for this area due to the uncertainty and timing of the BRT effort. Should BRT come to pass, there may be a requirement to support much denser development than even SSMUH allows, and zoning for SSMUH now might result in new and somewhat denser construction going into place just in time to face even larger density requirements from the Transit Oriented Area (TOA) rules. The other thing Staff recommended was zoning the area for higher density in advance. This was defeated with a split Council, with Mayor Little and Councillors Muri, Forbes, and Mah opposed, and Councillors Hanson, Back, and Pope in support. There were strong opinions here, and it is possible that the Province will force SSMUH zoning on the area regardless of the Council's stand.

Next was discussion of an Age Friendly Strategy (soon renamed an Aging and Older Person Strategy). In this effort, Staff will develop a 10-year strategy to make the DNV more accessible to those "of a certain age." There was some discussion about the kinds of things this strategy will do, but everyone supported it.

Finally, the Purple Chair Campaign support request received unanimous support. This campaign places purple chairs in public locations to commemorate those lost to drug overdoses.

Mar 9, 2026 Workshop:

This workshop covered the public input to the 2026-30 budget, along with Councillors and the Mayor proposing and debating their own changes to the budget. There wasn't a lot of budget input from the public this year, but it was about average. There was one year where a large number of inputs were received on a single, organized topic, but discarding that, the public input on the budget was essentially normal.

There were two additions to the budget. Councillor Pope proposed adding $25,000 to the budget to support a temporary youth coordinator position in Lynn Valley. This has been brought up repeatedly at recent Council meetings, and here it was finally debated to some degree. It was pointed out that this isn't the usual way such things are funded, and the members of the public present to support this effort indicated they had never heard of the DNV committee that handles grants of this type. There was some concern about setting a precedent, and some raised worries, but it passed unanimously. Next, Mayor Little asked for an additional $40,000 to add to the District's program for handling invasive species. Ivy on our local cedar trees is a serious problem, and while there were concerns about the effectiveness of this effort, it also passed unanimously.

There was additional discussion about various aspects of the budget, including concerns over spending from the reserve funds, debt, and the costs of the District's RCMP contract, among other things. However, no additional changes were made. In the end the additional $65,000 added to the budget will bring the tax increase from 3.5% to 3.53%, and Council voted unanimously to prepare the needed bylaws to enact this budget.

Mar 16, 2026 Meeting:

As is usually the case, there was a lot on the agenda for this meeting, including a particularly contentious development proposal in Lynn Valley, and it was over three hours long. The items relevant to Blueridge were:

A development at Riverside & Windridge Drive was approved. This replaces a few homes at the corner of Mount Seymour Parkway and Riverside Drive with 36 strata-owned townhouses in buildings of 3 or 4 storeys. No public hearing is allowed on this development because it is in agreement with the Official Community Plan (OCP) and Provincial law now prohibits public hearings in such cases. Despite some concerns about tree removal, the project received unanimous approval from Council. Mayor Little, however, cautions that this development is on the fringes of Maplewood Town Centre, and because of the way a past DNV Council dealt with the plan for that area - they locked in permission for tall developments in the OCP - he thinks people may be surprised at the heights of some of the developments coming in the centre of Maplewood. And again, there will be no public hearings about them thanks to the changes in Provincial law.

The Financial Plan Approval Bylaw also passed unanimously, however, there was some consternation over the allocation of up to $50K from a specific DNV reserve fund in support of a Lynn Valley Youth Centre. Not all Councillors were aware that item was going to be raised, and there was some confusion over the specifics. The bylaw allowing 3.53% tax increase passed unanimously, but there were ruffled feathers.

Council also received information from Staff about the possibility of using Residential Rental Tenure Zoning (which would require some Small-Scale Multi-Unit Housing (SSMUH) units to be kept as rentals) or requiring one unit in a 6-unit SSMUH development to be developed as affordable housing. Staff reported that neither of those options is currently economically viable. Council voted unanimously to accept this information, but nothing there implies action by Council on SSMUH in the DNV.

Council also decided to send a letter to the BC Premier in support of the BC Rent Bank, which is a tool for helping keep people housed when they are impacted by an unexpected expense.

Mar 30, 2026 Workshop:

This workshop will discuss the Community Transportation Plan Update and potential changes to the southern section of Mountain Highway. However, due to the timing, it will be reported on in the May issue of the Blueridge Bulletin.

Those wanting more information should attend council meetings in person or online, read the meeting minutes, or watch the recording of a meeting after the fact. You can comment about issues before the council via email or by attending a meeting. Information about all these options is available at <https://www.dnv.org/government-administration/meeting-agendas-and-minutes>.

In A Nutshell

- Always use a credit card when buying any type of battery. That's not for tracking or record-keeping purposes. It's simply that batteries work best when they're charged.

- Not Many Items Here - It turns out there aren't a lot of short announcements this month. But the bad jokes continue regardless!
- What is it called when a banana eats another banana?
Cannibananabalism. I know, that joke isn't appealing.
- Water Conservation: Reminder: Stage 1 water conservation rules will begin on May 1, 2026. And this year, given the warm winter and the relatively poor local snowpack, it is possible Stage 2 restrictions will be applied at some point. This is a good time to consider replacing your lawn with something that doesn't need watering, as lawns are a huge consumer of water in the summer months. If you can't do that, at least let your lawn go dormant. If you don't water it, it will simply turn brown and await the fall rains, which will cause it to green back up. Dormant lawns also don't need mowing, so they save work too!
- Fun fact: Koi fish always travel in groups of 4. If attacked, the A B and C koi will scatter, leaving behind the D koi.
- Your Item Here: Do you have a short item for next month's Blueridge Bulletin? If so, see the Submit an Article section below for details on how to send it in.
- I read that giraffes can grow up to 18 feet. But the ones I've seen only had four.
